

Caraway Denies Committee Gave Immunity to Cannon

Arkansas Says Bishop "Must Answer" for $65,000 Fund But Doesn't Say to Whom.

WASHINGTON, June 19. — (AP) The senate wrote this today to the controversy between its lobby committee and Bishop Cannon after a bristing last paragraph had been added by Senator Caraway, of Arkansas. The democratic chairman of the committee defended its action in not forcing the Methodist churchman to answer questions relating to the disposition of $65,000 contributed to him for the 1928 anti-Smith campaign by E. C. Jamieson, a New York capitalist. But he added:

"As to the $65,000, he stands in an unenviable position and he can answer for himself, I will not."

Going into the source of the money,

Caraway said he did not believe it belonged to Jamieson. "I think he was passing out the money of the republican national committee in order to fight Al Smith on religious and other grounds, and did not want to be connected with it. I may be mistaken about that."

"Bishop Cannon was brought to Jamieson by Bascom Slem, republican national committeeman for Virginia, who was very much interested, of course, in republican success."

Chairman Caraway presented as a report from the committee, a transcript of thousands of words of testimony given by Cannon during his appearance before the group.

No Right Seen. He informed his colleagues the committee had agreed it had no right to ask the questions the bishop declines to answer. Then Vice President Curtis announced he would not cite the bishop to the district attorney for possible contempt proceedings.

Action by the vice president was the final straw to which opponents of the bishop clung in their hope that something would be done about his defiance of the lobby investigators. The announcement by Curtis definitely closed the incident.

Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, had contended the law required Curtis to report the bishop to the district attorney. The vice president, however, took the position that was nothing before him to act upon.

He explained that the lobby committee itself had ruled four to one that it had no right to investigate Cannon's political activities. In addition, he said he could act only upon a report from a full committee. The lobby investigators composed a subcommittee of the judiciary committee.

Caraway said any statement that the bishop was given "immunity" by the lobby committee was an "unqualified and deliberate falsehood." Founding his desk the Arkansas said:

"Certain people want to charge that Bishop Cannon was given immunity. The statement is an unqualified and deliberate falsehood and whoever utters it does so with the knowledge that he is a common liar, claim no immunity for that declaration here or anywhere else."

Answers Criticism. Referring again to criticism of the lobby committee for not compelling Cannon to answer the questions, Caraway asserted:

"There have been more statements made that arose from utter ignorance of what did occur or were prompted by malicious lying than about any other incident I know of. While it may not be passing out the money of the republican national committee, it was a different rule applied in this case than that which had been applied in several other instances or at least that the chairman had changed his position in this matter, he either does not know what he is talking about or he is uttering a willful and malicious lie. And that stands in the senate and outside of it."

Caraway said the committee had never inquired into purely political activities and cited a number of instances in which he said questions pertaining to such activities had been withdrawn.

During the examination of Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the republican national committee, Caraway said political questions were withdrawn six times. He said the same thing occurred during testimony of John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, and other witnesses.

Caraway said the Steiwer committee appointed in 1928 to investigate campaign contributions had full authority to inquire into the $65,000 contributed by Jamieson to Cannon.

"I am not criticizing it for not doing it," he said. "It could not pursue everybody that got a nickel in that campaign and nobody ever expected it to do so. But at least it had the authority to do it. It was expressly charged with the exercise of that authority and did not do it. We had no authority to do it. We were not charged with that duty, and of course, we did not do it."

"Not Defending. It is indicated—and I am not defending it, nor making the charge; I say that it was made by insinuation at least on the floor of the house—that Bishop Cannon misappropriated the funds that may be true but we were not a grand jury. We uncovered several things that we did not pursue."

"We did not pursue and did not ask the chairman to report to anybody the chairman of the republican national committee when it appeared that he had taken funds donated by the Union Carbide Company for the Tennessee River Improvement Association and put them in a trading account. We did not report that to anybody or ask anybody to take any action on it."

"We did not ask the prohibition authorities or the district attorney to investigate the fact when it was disclosed that in a banquet given to the former senator from New York (Mr. Wadsworth) at Baltimore, they had $75 worth of liquor and disbursed it."

"We did not ask the prohibition authorities to pursue Captain Stuyton, of the Society Opposed to Prohibition, when it was disclosed in the testimony that they were keeping peach brandy for distribution among their lobbying friends."

"We did not ask the state department to take any action when it was disclosed that the Cuban ambassador here in Washington was maintaining a lobby supported in part by money from Cuba to fight legislation then pending in congress."

"We did not ask the interstate commerce commission to take any action against a railroad in New England when it was disclosed that it was contributing to a lobby fund against the law of the land."

"We did not ask the war department to pursue a retired army officer who was engaged in waging war against his own country while on the pay roll as a retired army officer."

"In fact, repeatedly when asked if we were going to request that any action be taken in these matters we say that that is not our concern. We are trying to find out facts, and the country will know what the facts are, and we are not concerned with what action may be taken with reference to the matter."

SMOOT-HAWLEY TARIFF IS DEFENDED BY ROSE

Georgia Collector Analyzes New Act in Speech to City Club.

Defense of the 1930 tariff bill was voiced Thursday afternoon by Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue for Georgia, in an address at the regular meeting of the City Club of Atlanta in the Piedmont hotel.

Mr. Rose declared that the new tariff bill is "not going to send the country to the bow-wow."

Judge E. C. Kontz, president of the club, said that it is hoped to have Senator William J. Harris and his opponent in the senate race, ex-Governor John M. Slaton, address the club in the near future.

Mr. Rose gave an instructive talk on the tariff bill. He said, in part: "The average rate of duty on the several tariff bills since the McKinley act of 1890 to the beginning of the Smoot-Hawley bill of 1930, was 43.46 per cent. The average duty in the Smoot-Hawley bill is 41.14 per cent, or 2.32 per cent less than the average duty which has been collected on imports since 1890."

"The people have been led to believe that this is a billion-dollar tariff bill. The facts are that last year duties to the amount of approximately five hundred and twenty million dollars were collected on imports. If the present rates of import duties had been in effect last year, collections would have amounted to approximately six hundred and twenty-five million dollars; in other words, the estimated increase in duties under the present bill over the previous duties would make a difference in duties of but one hundred and five million dollars."

"The total value of all of the products, agricultural and non-agricultural and otherwise of the United States yearly is approximately one hundred billion dollars at retail prices. The total exports last year were, in round numbers, five billion dollars, or 5 per cent of our total production. Of course, we do not want to lose the export of this five billion dollars' worth of goods and there is no chance of losing it, for of that amount raw cotton alone provides a considerable proportion; but if we should lose all of them, which is unthinkable, we would still be on a 95 per cent basis."

"Much has been said about sugar. The former rate on sugar was 1.76 per pound. Under the present bill it is 2 cents per pound, or an increase of 24-100 of a cent a pound. The average yearly consumption of sugar per person is 112 pounds. This increase would therefore amount to 27 cents per person or a total increase of approximately thirty-three million dollars. Assuming that this increase in price is necessary for the protection of American sugar producers and that without it they could not operate, there is one sugar refinery in the state of Georgia whose investment is probably close to 20 per cent of this total increase."

"One of the very fine provisions of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act, is the flexible provision which provides for a bi-partisan tariff commission to investigate and determine the relative costs and competitive conditions between this country and other countries. Based on the recommendation of the tariff commission the president of the United States has the authority to raise or lower the present tariff rates 50 per cent of the present duty. This is a wonderful provision of the act and should make a general revision of the tariff unnecessary for a long time to come."

Pennsylvania Race Cost Set at $1,250,000

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 19. — (AP) Expenditures of $314,748 on behalf of the Davis-Brown ticket and $422,577 for Senator Joseph R. Grundy, reported today brought the total cost of the Pennsylvania republican primary to more than $1,250,000.

That approximate sum represents the aggregate expended to further the campaigns of the principal candidates for republican nomination. It includes in addition to Davis-Brown slate and Senator Grundy, those of Gifford Pinchot, nominee for governor, and the "wet" ticket of Francis H. Bohlen, Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., and Charles Dorrance.

Accounts of the Davis-Brown campaign committee, received by that state elections bureau from Samuel M. Vauclain, treasurer, show that of the total spent, $117,943 is represented in unpaid obligations. Receipts amounted to $197,617.

The Grundy receipts were $431,185, of which $382,250 was contributed by Senator Grundy himself.

SALESMAN SENTENCED FOR MURDERING GIRL

WASHINGTON, June 19. — (AP) Dexter Dayton, salesman, today was sentenced in District of Columbia supreme court to life imprisonment on a plea of guilty to the murder last October of Marjorie O'Donnell, employee of the National Geographic Society. Miss O'Donnell, daughter of a Pennsylvania newspaperman, was strangled to death in a hotel room here.

Dayton told police jealousy and drink were responsible and that he intended to kill himself but his nerve failed.

Vet Bill Advocates Ask Saturday Session

WASHINGTON, June 19. — (AP) Senate advocates of the veterans' relief bill tonight were demanding a Saturday session to force early action in view of the refusal of Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, to agree for an immediate vote on the bill.

Reed's action which was interpreted by some as indicating presidential opposition to the veterans' measure upset the adjournment program and estimates for an end of this session ranged tonight from June 26 to July 1.

Friends of the veterans' bill expressed fear it will get through congress so late that no opportunity will be given for a vote to override a veto should President Hoover disapprove the bill.

For that reason, Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant republican leader, was planning to get to the bill tomorrow and propose an agreement for a final vote on Saturday.

There will be no admission charge, and the public is invited to attend, it was announced.

Professor Defends Installment Sales

TORONTO, Ontario, June 19. — (AP) Installment selling has not been found to have been a major cause of business depression, Dr. Clyde Phelps, head of the department of economics at the University of Chattanooga, Tennessee, told the convention of the National Retail Credit Association today.

Neither was this system the cause of the recent prosperity in the United States, said Dr. Phelps, pointing out that installment selling had not been increasing by leaps and bounds during the past few years, but had grown naturally and normally.

AT CANDLER FIELD

Losing his footing on a perch about 20 feet above the entrance to the Eastern Air Transport hangar at Candler field Thursday afternoon, C. J. Clark, popular mechanic for the company, fell to the ground and received injuries to his shoulder and back. He was taken to a private hospital.

Clark, officials said, was engaged in replacing a window above the hangar entrance, when he lost his footing. He fell, striking the ground with his shoulder. His condition Thursday night was not considered as serious.

After experiencing terrific head winds and a low ceiling following his hop-off last Sunday from Valley Stream, L. I., M. W. Wynne, Curtiss-Wright service flying student, reached Atlanta at noon Thursday in a two-place training ship known as the "Command-Air." Local officials of the concern stated that they will place the new ship on the Atlanta market.

Two Bills Block Way To Senate Closing

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(P)—Efforts to get agreements for final votes on the veterans' relief bill and the river and harbor measure failed in the senate today, clouding the prospects for an early adjournment of this session.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, killed a proposal by Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant republican leader, for a vote today on the veterans' bill. Reed said he favored many provisions but was so opposed to others he wanted more time than would be presented by today's debate to discuss the legislation. This left the river and harbor measure before the senate and Chairman Johnson, of the commerce committee, moved to bring it to an early vote. The controversy over the amount of water to be allowed from the Great Lakes for the Illinois waterway route remains to be settled before this bill can come to a vote.

While overwhelming support is evident for the veterans' relief measure, Reed said he believed two days of debate were necessary.

His stand was believed to have set back adjournment until the end of next week at the earliest.

CITY READY TO SELL ASPHALT FOR BRIDGE

Every Effort Being Made To Hasten Opening of Forsyth Viaduct.

Atlanta will offer to sell the MacDougall Construction Company, contractors, the necessary asphalt to be poured on the southern span of the Forsyth street bridge at once, it was announced Thursday by Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction.

Mr. Donaldson announced that the bridge is now ready for the paving and that the work is being held up by bringing to Atlanta of the mixing plant of the MacDougall company.

Although the company has until July 10 to complete the job with all delays, an effort is being made to complete it earlier in order to permit the passage of vehicular traffic and thus eliminate congestion in the area. Pedestrians are now using the bridge, but vehicles still are barred.

Thursday afternoon Mr. Donaldson instructed C. E. Kaufmann, engineer of bridges in the chief of construction office, to offer to sell the needed asphalt to the MacDougall company in the effort to hasten completion of the project.

Mr. Kaufmann was unable to reach Alexander MacDougall, president, Thursday, but will do so this morning, he stated.

Merchants in the area are greatly concerned over having the bridge opened at the earliest possible moment. It was pointed out that virtually no work has been done on the structure in the past three days awaiting arrival in Atlanta of the asphalt mixing plant. It probably will be the first part of next week before it gets here, it was said.

Engineers stated that the bridge can be used within a few hours after the asphalt is laid and that the estimated 30 tons of asphalt, required to complete it, can be laid in about a day.

Plans now are to open the bridge the latter part of next week, but with the merchants in the vicinity insisting on immediate action and the offer of the construction department yet to be considered, it was predicted Thursday that Mr. MacDougall would take advantage of the opportunity to push the bridge to completion as soon as possible.

Four Children Sent to Death By 'New' Malady

CHICAGO, June 19.—(P)—Four of the six children of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin McKittrick have died from a mysterious poisoning that so far has baffled physicians and scientists.

A fifth child rallied slightly today from a blood transfusion, undertaken as a last-minute expedient.

While the father yesterday submitted to the transfusion of blood, the mother attended the funeral of three of the children—Raymond, 2; Evelyn, 5; and Paul, 10.

A few hours later, Donald, 3, died. Led by Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, some of Chicago's best known physicians and scientists have tried to solve the poisoning. They were convinced that it resulted from some bacterial organism, but were unable to determine the source.

Commissioner Kegel began a check today of food the children had eaten and to learn if they had played in any muddy puddles or been swimming in contaminated water.

The infection is believed to have originated in the nose and throat and then spreading through the body, destroying the red corpuscles in the blood.

Only the McKittrick's infant child escaped the poisoning.

Southern Publishers Meet in Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 19.—(P)—Pending legislation, including the Vandenberg bill governing certain contempt cases, and postal regulations will be discussed at the convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association at Asheville, N. Stahman, executive director of the Nashville, Tenn., Banner, will lead a discussion of lottery advertising and postoffice department rulings. Horace J. Donnelly, solicitor for the postoffice department, will be in attendance.

The Vandenberg bill to require federal judges to permit other judges to hear certain contempt cases will be taken up at a round table, led by Mark Ethridge, managing editor of the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph. Publishers' labor problems will be the subject of Harvey J. Kelly, of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and Frank E. Phillips, of the New England Daily Newspaper Association.

Charles F. Rathbun, prominent Chicago attorney and representative of Colonel Robert R. McCormick, of the Chicago Tribune, will speak on "Freedom of the Press."

Captain Enoch Brown, Jr., advertising manager of the Memphis Commercial Appeal; Leslie M. Barton, Chicago, former president of the Association of Newspaper Executives; and Nelson P. Poyner, of the Kokomo, Ind., Dispatch, will lead a forum on the differential in local and national advertising rates. ### Chicago Doctors Hit Prohibition As Crime Source

CHICAGO, June 19.—(P)—The retiring and incoming presidents of the Chicago Medical Society joined in addresses last night in denunciation of prohibition and of what one of the speakers called "racketeers of righteousness."

It was the second attack on the law by Chicago during the day, the city council earlier having adopted a resolution attacking the prohibition laws as an "abuse of the law-making power."

Both the new president of the medical society, Dr. James H. Hutton, and the retiring president, Dr. Charles B. Reed, called upon American medicine to fight for repeal of the dry law.

Dr. Hutton said that American medicine should start an organized national resistance to any further reform laws and work for the repeal of existing legislation of that kind as the shortest cut to eliminating a large part of present crime conditions.

Dr. Reed said: "The total collapse of prohibition is due not only to the fact that law is inconsistent with the political, social and moral demands of democracy, but also because in principle it is definitely wrong and immoral to deny the individual his right to choose in a matter that is entirely his own business."

"Yet so-called moral leaders think it is of small consequence if humanity is unhappy under the lash of their own narrow views, or bootleggers build up a three hundred thousand dollar business, so long as they can pursue in comfort their own purgatorial pleasures."

EDMONTON, Alta., June 19.—(P) Flood waters which swept away communication lines, closed roads and covered hundreds of acres of land in the Peace river district were slowly receding today.

St. Augustine Bank Suspends Operation

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., June 19.—(P)—The Bankers Trust Company of St. Augustine failed to open for business today.

A notice, which appeared on the door read: "Due to unfavorable business conditions and to the fact that the local business support has been insufficient to warrant our continued operation, the directors have voted to close this institution and liquidate its affairs."

"All depositors will be paid in full as quickly as this liquidation will warrant."

The notice was signed by Paul T. Bearer as president. A statement of the Bankers Trust Company, as of December 31, 1929, showed deposits of $302,895.79 and capital of $100,000. Surplus was listed at $6,180.39 and resources and liabilities of $464,045.31.

President Bearer said depositors would be paid 100 cents on every dollar deposited.

POWER FIRMS ANSWER CHARGES BY SACKETT

Speakers at Berlin Claim Ambassador Erred on Figures.

BERLIN, June 19.—(A)—Spokesman for the power industry tonight answered the speech made yesterday by Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett, in which the ambassador said in effect that the cost of power to the consumer was 15 times that of the cost of production.

"The cost of a banana on the tree," asserts a statement issued by George N. Tidd, president of the American Gas and Electric Company, "is infinitesimal yet by the time it has been gathered and reached the fruitstand the ratio is nearer 1,500 to 1 than 15 to 1, and similar examples are common in all kinds of industries."

"The electrical industry is by no means the only, or even the most striking example of this great difficulty (of the spread between production cost and the cost to the consumer). In nearly every industry the cost of distributing and selling is much greater than the initial cost of production."

Although he attacked Mr. Sackett's logic, Tidd was calm in his references to the ambassador, whose speech was the storm center of the conference for a while. On the contrary, he conceded that "Ambassador Sackett has earned the gratitude of electrical engineers by drawing the attention of the public to the high cost of distributing electricity, which those engineers for years have been attempting to reduce. This is, as the ambassador indicated, one of the vital problems which have engaged the attention of our electrical supply companies for the last decade."

CHAMBER PLANS DRIVE FOR VETERANS' HOME

Luncheon Today To Launch Move To Secure Location of Institution Here.

At a luncheon meeting to be held at 12:30 o'clock today at the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, discussion of ways and means to further improve the board of managers in charge of veterans' home locations of the war department with the desirability of building a national 20,000,000 veterans' home in or near Atlanta will be featured. It was announced Thursday by Sam C. Crane, former secretary of the national soldiers' and sailors' home committee of the Spanish War Veterans' Atlanta camp.

Mr. Crane declared that while the campaign to have such a national home located in the south is precluded by the recommendation of Congress that this part of the country be selected for its site, his organization will bend every effort to secure selection of Atlanta or close vicinity for the home. Any action now, he pointed out, is up to the national board of managers and it will be the aim of today's gathering to set forth the merits of Atlanta's claim.

OLD CLOTHES SALES PLANNED BY "ARMY"

An appeal for more old summer-weight clothing to enable the Salvation Army social service center to support itself with rummage sales during the summer was made Thursday by Ensign Hugo Bloemberg, officer in charge. He expressed appreciation for generous response after first announcement Saturday that the closing down of the old paper market had cut off the institution's chief source of revenue, but stated that not enough material has yet been collected to meet the emergency.

Storage space has been arranged for old papers, he said, and collection of them will continue in anticipation of reopening of the market in the early fall. Old clothing, rags, paper and furniture will be collected on phone calls to Jackson 2224.

Snodgrass will make his second climb under auspices of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps of Atlanta Post No. 1.

Yeomans, state entomologist, is in Greensboro today in attendance at the trial of injunction proceedings brought by the Liquid Arsenate Chemical Company of Greensboro, to restrain him, the state commissioner of agriculture and the state board of entomology from interfering with the sales of liquid arsenate, an insecticide.

The injunction was asked by the company after the state board of entomology, stating that the product did not meet their requirements, declined to grant it registration.

'I'M AS GOOD A MAN AS I WAS 25 YEARS AGO'

"I Know of Many Cases Where My Friends Took Sargon and Got Wonderful Results."

"Sargon not only brought me the best health I've had in years, but I know plenty of other people who have gotten the same wonderful results from it that I have."

FRANK ANDERSON.

"I suffered most of the time with a pain in my right side and often my back ached so I couldn't work. Restful sleep was impossible and my nervous system broke down completely. My liver was all out of order and if I ate a 'man's' meal I was in misery for hours. My strength steadily left me and I don't know what would have happened if I hadn't taken Sargon."

"Since taking 12 bottles of Sargon I'm 'as good a man' as I was 25 years ago! Nothing is wrong with me that I know of—no more pains in my back or side—my appetite is keen, and I have that old-time strength and energy that makes life and work a real pleasure."

"Sargon Pills regulated me perfectly, and they were so natural in action I hardly knew I had taken any medicine. Sargon is not only good for troubles like I had, but I know of case after case where my friends have taken it for various other ailments and they came out on top."

The above statement was made by Frank Anderson, 910 26th St., Denver, Colo.

Sargon may be obtained at all Jacobs' drug stores.—(adv.)

Sabbath Fishers Granted Leniency On Guilty Pleas

Leniency was extended in Decatur city court Thursday by Judge Frank Gues to two of a group of four Atlanta men charged with violating an old state law which forbids fishing on the Sabbath when he pronounced probationary sentences of 30 days each on L. F. Morris, 1022 West View drive, and A. H. Vaughan, 253 Hayden street, who pleaded guilty to the charge.

The cases of the other two Atlanta fishermen, M. A. Riley, 1023 West View drive, and C. A. Smith, 639 Somerset terrace, who are at liberty on bail of $100 each following their preliminary hearing before a DeKalb county justice of the peace, will be held later in the week. Riley also pleaded guilty, but Smith denied he was fishing at the time the arrest was made. The justice set bond for the men and transferred decision of the case to Decatur city court.

D.A.V. Corps Seeks Third Championship

Twice national champions of their organization's military band activities, the drum and bugle corps of the Atlanta Disabled American Veterans of the World War today will depart for the national convention of the order to be held at New Orleans beginning today and continuing through next Friday, determined to seek its third consecutive championship.

A downtown parade of the corps, which won national honors at Denver in 1923 and at Detroit last year, will feature the departure, with the 27 members of the active corps marching from the City auditorium at 3 o'clock this afternoon, along Edgewood avenue to Pryor street, then to Peachtree, to Mitchell, to the Terminal station. The members will leave at 4:20 p. m. for the Crescent City.

The D. A. V. drum and bugle corps' uniform is unique among military organizations. It is red, white and blue with blue drums, red sticks and, on each bugle, an Atlanta pennant. Among those to leave is Alderman Ben D. Hulet, who is a member of the corps, serving as color bearer.

Wrecking Contract Penalty Demanded

Atlanta will insist on payments of the penalty of $111 a day for failure of the wrecking company to complete demolition of the old city hall and clearing of the site by Sunday, it was announced Thursday by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale.

According to estimates of W. C. Flournoy, who now holds the contract for clearing the site, it will take an additional 30 days to complete the work.

The municipality several weeks ago let a contract to J. V. Fain for clearing the site for which he was to pay $1,500. The sum was paid and a bond for $2,000 was posted to assure completion of the work within the 90-day period of the contract. Fain was to get the salvaged material.

Fain fell into financial difficulties and Louis H. Foster, Atlanta attorney, was named receiver. Under a court order, Foster was authorized to sell the contract for wrecking the old building, and Flournoy bought it. He is now at work on the project, but can not complete it before July 22, according to his estimate. He has no time limit in his contract.

Surviving are his widow and mother, who live in Richmond; four sisters, one of whom is Mrs. T. A. Fry, of Decatur, and two brothers.

Noted Broadway Producer To See Kiddie Show Here

Chester Hale, world famous producer of stage shows, will reach Atlanta on Sunday afternoon from New York. He is coming to witness the final rehearsal for the "Toytown" revue, with which more than a hundred Atlanta child performers will present a benefit show all next week at Loew's Capitol. The benefit is for the Scottish Rite Crippled Children's Milk Fund. Pi Pi girls, with milk pails, will be in the lobby at each performance to receive voluntary contributions for the great cause.

Mr. Hale will hold a full dress rehearsal at 8 o'clock Monday morning, at which time he will put the finishing touches to the work his first assistant, Miss Ruth Alpert, has accomplished during her three weeks in the city. Then he will see the opening performances Monday afternoon and night, before hurrying back to New York for the work for which he is internationally famous.

The milk fund benefit, sponsored by the Atlanta Masonic Club, will be given at each Capitol performance next week in addition to the regular program. This will consist of one of the most talked of features of the talking screen, "The Floradora Girl," starring Marion Davies, and a splendid program of Loew's "Ace" vaudeville.

Black Again Asks Action on Shoals

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—
For the fourth time since house and senate conferees failed to agree on legislation to dispose of Muscle Shoals, Senator Black, democrat, Alabama, today placed responsibility for the failure with the administration. He served notice in the senate he would attempt to prevent adjournment "until the house and senate are in record whether they prefer to go home to private business, or stay and pass legislation that the power trust does not want."

Black presented a telegram from Judge Fred Johnson at Muscle Shoals, Ala., "two miles away from that great power project," explaining that a previous communication to the senator had been written in the town hall "by the light of a kerosene lamp."
Recalling that the municipality was "in the position of a supplicant, lifting up its hands begging to be allowed to buy some of the power," the Alabama read news clippings giving profits of the Alabama Power Company, and added, "that is the company which, somewhere in this city, somebody wants to protect."

Howard Urges DeKalb Government Changes

five-commissioner and county manager form of government to supplant
the present one-commissioner system,
William Schley Howard, former convocating the change.

The meeting, held at the courthouse, was sponsored by the citizens' committee, of which Paul H. Huff is chairman and Charles D. McKinnon president. Several other meetings will be held between now and July 9, the date for the election on the question,
the next being scheduled for the North Decatur Hills schools next Thursday night, when W. D. Thompson, superintendent of schools, will speak.

Edmund Lowe Stars In "Born Reckless"

This fellow Edmund Lowe, grows on your appreciation the more you see of him. Each picture in which he plays seems to be better than his previous efforts. Which rates "Born Reckless," in which he is the star next week on the Fox screen, quite high in entertainment value.

Saw "Born Reckless" at a preview Thursday morning. Of course, Lowe is 75 per cent of the picture, in so far as performance is concerned. But he is good enough to carry an even larger percentage than that.
It is a story of New York gangsters —of a brief wartime interlude—and of the inevitable finish that comes to those who follow violence for their profession. Lowe, as said, is magnificent as "Louis Beretti," the gangster who awakens finally to the mistake he has made of his life. The finish leaves the audience a little in doubt, but presumably Beretti's awakening was too late.

The lovely Catherine Dale Owen plays the feminine lead, but has little to do. It is, pre-eminently, a masculine picture. As such, it ought to please this age of worship of the virile.

FLORIDIAN FOUND SLAIN BY BULLETS

ARCADIA, Fla., June 19.—(AP)—
S. R. McChesney, 68-year-old real estate and insurance broker, was found dead in the bath room of his home here late yesterday. Coroner's physician reported the finding of a revolver with two empty chambers. A bullet in the victim's heart and another behind his ear. Authorities said they found a note left for his wife explaining that he had killed himself because he feared a lingering illness. Mrs. McChesney said she was away from home at the time of the shooting, visiting friends.

Besides the widow he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Will Wright, of Toledo, Ohio. Funeral services will be delayed until she arrives, probably tomorrow.

GRAY HAIR INDICATES BAD HEALTH—MAKES YOU OLD

Gray Hair Is Dead Hair, But Youthful Color Can Be Revived
USERS OF NEW TONIC
LOOKS YEARS YOUNGER

A newly discovered scalp and hair tonic banishes itchy dandruff, eczema and falling hair and while doing this users notice in amazement that the youthful color returns to their gray hair as if by magic.

Primarily intended only as a stimulating tonic to put the hair and scalp in vigorous condition—it has followed that the hair revives and changes back to youthful color, from gray to its shade of brown, red, auburn, black or blonde, as the case may be, and the user actually looks years younger. What is more becoming than the shade nature bestowed originally to match your complexion? There are over 3,000 shades to human hair and no expert can tint or paint the hair.

with oldtime dyes so satisfactorily.
It seems a doctor asked himself this question: If I can stimulate the heart, liver, bowels, digestion, etc., with a tonic, why not apply a stimulating tonic to the glands and hair roots. Endless experiments resulted in the "Lea's Hair Tonic" which may now be obtained in leading drug stores. The change, shade by shade, is so gradual back to youthful color both men and women use it. No unsuspecting and experts cannot detect it.
Thousands of empirical tests prove Lea's Hair Tonic harmless and continuously satisfactory over long periods of years. As a test, one may apply to small spot on scalp and watch results.

If the reader desires to try Lea's
Hair Tonic on guarantee of complete satisfaction they should get a bottle at drug store or pin dollar bill to this

In a hostess it's Graciousness

in a cigarette it's Taste

THE SUCCESS OF A HOSTESS depends upon her ability to make others feel at home; that of a cigarette, upon better taste.

HOW ELSE EXPLAIN Chesterfield's constant gains, its ever-mounting popularity with smokers everywhere?

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE for the delicate mildness and rich aroma that belong to Chesterfield, nor for Chesterfield's unique blend and cross-blend. "In a cigarette it's TASTE!" Yes, and in a Chesterfield, it's... "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

COMPROMISE SETTLES VALUATIONS DISPUTE

Committee Decides Controversy on Taxes Between Power Concern and State.

An arbitration committee Thursday decided a controversy as to tax valuations of properties of the Georgia Power and Light Company in Seminole, Thomas and DeKalb counties, William B. Harrison, comptroller general, announced.

934 in Seminole county, which the comptroller general raised to $50,330. The property's value was set at $25,034 in the arbitration.

In DeKalb county the company claimed $219,324, and an assessment of $548,310 was imposed by the state. The compromise figure was $200,000.

The Thomas county seat, where $38,045 was returned by the company and a $100,000 valuation asked by the state, was settled at $52,500.

In the case of DeKalb county it was brought out that a power plant, included in the state's assessment, had not been in operation for more than a year, due to flood damage, thus making it necessary to reduce the amount of the assessment.

Hearings in the case have been held at intervals for the past month.

June Brides Find Many Aids At Home Beautiful Exhibits

EVENT BREAKS TIMELY FOR NEWLYWEDS

June has been looked upon as a great month for brides since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, but this particular June is offering an extra added attraction coming under the heading of "Something Every Bride Should Know."

The answer is the Home Beautiful exhibit now open for inspection in Avondale Estates, being presented through the courtesy of The Atlanta Constitution in co-operation with a number of Atlanta's leading merchants and business establishments.

The houses on exhibit are located at No. 2 Clarendon place and at 32 Dartmouth avenue. The unit on Clarendon place is a beautiful Tudor English house of brick and stone construction, and that on Dartmouth avenue is designed in Spanish architecture.

Beginning last Sunday, the exhibit will continue through Sunday, June 29, the houses being open for inspection daily from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 10:30 o'clock at night, with hostesses in charge of each unit.

And while it is not known whether they are brides or brides-to-be, flocks of young women and girls are forming a large portion of the crowds that swarm daily to the beautifully furnished residences in Avondale included in the big show.

This was particularly true Thursday, when one of the largest week-day crowds yet inspected the houses. Several parties of women viewed the exhibits during the afternoon, and the day's total of visitors became unusually large.

The exquisitely furnished houses score heavily with the women visitors. Many express unqualified admiration for the discriminating manner in which the interiors are laid out. And not least among the features of the exhibit which come in for enthusiastic praise is the furniture display which has contributed largely to establishing this year's home beautiful show as one of the best.

There was an abundance of men in the Thursday pilgrimage, too. Many prospective home-builders inspected the houses closely and were quick to detect the technique with which the houses were arranged and equipped. The men were greatly impressed with the fact that despite the elaborate furnishings, the homes represent a moderate investment.

The houses were furnished by Rich's, Inc., under the supervision of W. Phillip Brown, interior decorator for the store. In addition to Rich's, the merchants and business establishments co-operating with The Constitution in staging the exhibit include: Georgia Power Company, which supplied electric ranges and appliances; Hinder's, pictures and pottery; Phillips & Crew, baby grand piano; Holland Furnace Company, heating plant; Grant-Harrie-Ripper Company, Ford town sedan and Ford sport coupe, and Frigidaire Sales Corporation, Frigidaires.

Rivers, Harbors Bill Assured Senate Okay

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The last big obstacle was swept from the path of the rivers and harbors bill through the senate today by the adoption of an amendment to limit the amount of water diverted from Lake Michigan for the Illinois' waterway project.

The senate voted, 45 to 21, for an amendment by Senator "Taine," republican, Wisconsin, ending a four-day debate on this, the highly controversial issue in the bill. Final vote is expected tomorrow afternoon. The measure carries authorizations estimated at $120,000,000 for the next three years.

Clothing Stores To Close at 5:30

Announcement is made by a number of the leading men's clothing stores in Atlanta that they will close daily at 5:30 o'clock, beginning next Monday.

The stores have remained open in the past until 6 o'clock, and the new closing time has been decided upon as a year-round policy. Those which have entered into the agreement include L. C. Adler, Copley Establishment, Daniel Brothers, Eisenman's, George Muse Clothing Company, Parks-Chambers, Inc., and Zachry.

Otto Seen as Seeker Of Dual Monarchies

BUCHAREST, June 19.—(AP)—Rumors have been revived throughout Rumania of the likelihood of new efforts to place Archduke Otto upon the throne both of Hungary and Austria.

The young archduke is now attending school in Belgium, and the newspapers Tansa and Curentul today asserted that when he reached the age of 18 in November he would become affianced to the youngest daughter of the king of Italy, thus obtaining the support of Italy for the project. Thefor ex-slaves."

youngest Italian royal princess is Maria, born in 1914.

Reports have been current since last winter that a movement was on foot to place young Otto on the Hungarian throne. The legitimist party holds that Otto, who is the son of the late Emperor Charles and the former Empress Zita, automatically became reigning king of Hungary when he reached the age of 18, in 1928.

Recent reports said that the Archduke Albrecht, candidate of the anti-legitimists for the Hungarian throne, had yielded his claim to Otto.

ETERNAL JOY—Rejoice in the LORD always; and again I say, Rejoice.—Phil. 4:4.

PRAYER—We would, Lord, "run our course with even joy and closely walk with Thee to Heaven."

NOW, FINISH THE WORK!

The primary results from Wednesday's city primary teach a stinging and salutary lesson to all those who have been, are now, or will be entrusted with the conduct of the people's public affairs.

They have shown that the people want no men of questionable character and uncertain integrity of official conduct to handle their public interests, levy their revenue and make private gain from public office.

Mayor-elect Key fittingly emphasizes the lesson of the result of the election in his statement that "honest and efficient government is coming back to Atlanta—but the job is not yet complete."

The Constitution has confidence not only in the sincerity, but in the ability, of the mayor-elect to point the way out of the morass of political corruption into which the city has been permitted to drift.

As mayor he will have our earnest support in every movement made to purify the city, and in that effort he is entitled to, and should receive, the support of all outstanding citizens.

The primary outcome is but the beginning of the general work of an awakened citizenship to clean out their Augean stable of municipal rottenness and install there a corps of servants who will keep their oaths of public fidelity, keep their hands out of the filth of bribery and corrupt practices, and stay out of the service and stripes of the penal chainings.

That is the first redemptory step—to demand that the public office service shall be clean and dependable, so that the people may go about their daily business with confidence that their common interests are in clean and honest hands.

The second necessary step is to ruthlessly ferret out every man who has had any part in the scandalous and criminal perversion of the city's business from public welfare to private profit.

The whole story of municipal malfeasances has not been laid bare, evidently, because the people have not waited for convictions, but themselves have rendered verdicts of want of confidence in cases yet awaiting court trials and the verdicts of juries.

They have acted summarily in their own defense.

Next in order is smashing the business of jury-fixers, the vermin who crawl into the sacredness of men's consciences and seek to corrupt them on their oaths and obligations as public jurors.

Honest juries are the last bulwarks of liberty and human rights; corrupted juries are the thieves who prey upon justice and the most vital interests of men and communities. Jury-tampering must be made as rare and dangerous in this county and city as are murder, arson and rape. That work must be done promptly and implacably.

Then must follow the unyielding prosecution of the uncovered grafters all down the line, so that no guilty man shall escape. The people demand that with unambiguous voice and will be satisfied with Trotzky's Secret.

Who is the rich English liberal who financed the Russian bolshevik revolution, and got his money back after it succeeded? An amusing story about him is told by Trotzky in his new book, "My Life." The rise and fall of a Dictator. The story is told in 1907 for the congress of the Russian social democrats, in which the bolsheviks were the driving power. "The party congress of 1907," he reveals, "held its meetings in a socialist church in London. It was a protracted, crowded, stormy, and chaotic congress. The second day of the congress was held in St. Petersburg. The revolution was subsiding, but it was still arousing great interest, even in England. The political situation was still in the lessening of party furor. There was not enough money for the journey, or even to carry the congress to its conclusion. When this and news reached under the arches of the church, cutting into the discussion on armed uprisings as it did, the delegates looked at one another in alarm. We could not come to London, of course. But a way out was found, and in quite an unexpected form. An English liberal agreed to lend the congress the money it needed, some £10,000, as nearly as I can remember the figure. He insisted, however, on the revolutionary promise that the party would not be signed by all the delegates at the congress, and so the Englishman received a document bearing several hundred signatures, the characteristic signs of a revolution. He had to wait a long time, however, for the payment of the note. It was the soviet government that brought back the promissory note of the party congress."

CHOOSING THEM CITYWIDE.

One of the most important results that should come out of the city primary of Wednesday is a general and emphatic demand upon every candidate for the legislature from Fulton county to give a distinct, inviolable pledge to secure a charter amendment requiring all city officers to be nominated, as the city charter provides they must be elected, by citywide vote.

There should be no equivocation on that subject. The people are entitled to choose all their officers. The ward primaries are prima facie illegal, but they must be utterly prohibited by express charter amendment. They are unjust and farcical, and deny a solemn right that belongs to every voter in the city. They are largely the cause for the political and graft scandals that have besmirched the city.

Anything less than citywide nominations will never again be submitted to by the people.

WHERE PUBLICITY PRODUCES.

Yesterday an attractive full page advertisement of the famous Gillette razor and blades was printed in The Constitution and contained a most significant and gratifying statement. Coming from the headquarters of the Gillette organization it said:

"We take pleasure in announcing that The Atlanta Constitution, competing against other newspapers in cities of 120,000 to 250,000 population, has won first place in the nationwide Gillette newspaper contest."

The prize in the form of extra advertising was for the greatest amount of sales co-operation rendered by a newspaper in helping to launch the new Gillette products locally—and that is what their advertisement in The Constitution did for those products, producing in Atlanta the largest increase in sales of any city of the same size in America.

This is a striking result, when the fact is taken into consideration that only The Constitution was used in Atlanta in this mammoth advertising campaign.

The experience thus testified to by a heavy national advertiser like the Gillette organization must prove impressive to other such advertisers, both local and national.

The medium that can outsell any other publicity carrier in its class, for a product of general use, is the vehicle the shrewdest producers and distributors are looking for.

They are finding it in this business area increasingly in the pages of The Constitution, which no one disputes having by far the largest circulation of any Atlanta newspaper.

The people have the confirmed two-thirds-of-a-century-old habit of looking to The Constitution for "the latest and the best."

The shadow-boxing admirals do not appear to have sunk the London naval pact "spurious versant"—as yet.

Firing jokes at the college graduates may seem jolly fun, but such birds have a general habit of "getting there" better than the jokers.

The Maine republican senatorial primary developed another case of White supremacy.

Secretary Stimson resents the idea that the outfit he led to London pulled a naval boner.

Sometimes the prize ring becomes a very sudden surprise ring.

Air travel is the only safe way to escape the road hog motorists.

At last Bebe Daniels is married—let us all hope "for good and all."

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

The Puzzling Probability of Our Losing One or Two Congress Members.

The report by our Washington representative, printed in The Constitution yesterday, showing the possibility that a Georgia representative will lose one, if not two, of her representatives in the house of congress, produced distressed comment over the city and in state capital offices.

On the face of known census returns, it seems inevitable that one congressman will be taken from us by the new apportionment, and, unless we have a major fraction over the aggregate population for ten members, the Georgia delegation will be reduced to only 10 members at the election in 1932 and for ten years thereafter. Such a result will be generally looked upon over the state as a humiliating calamity, politically and potentially.

THE SCRAMBLE TO KEEP IN.

When the legislature of 1931 comes to the business of redistricting the state for congress representatives there will occur under the state capital dome one of the liveliest scrambles that has been seen in Atlanta since Sherman's first bomb fell at Ellis and Ivy streets in 1864.

Of course, there must be a redistricting, even if we should happily hold on to our dozen members, for the districts must, by law, be made as nearly equal in population as practicable. Since 1910, when the present districts were laid off, they have gotten all "out of whack" by reason of the shifting of local and state population. The fifth district, for instance, is largely overpopulated and the third is very considerably under the lawful quota. Such discrepancies would need to be adjusted.

SOMETHING SURE TO HAPPEN.

This much at least can be taken for granted by the politicians concerned: that the people of Fulton county are going to name the congressman from this district from among their own citizens hereafter.

The redistricting is bound to take off the district three to four of the counties now in it and the county unit system of nominating a candidate for congress will no longer be yielded.

The proper solution of the case in all events is to make the capital county of the state, with her ample population, a unit congressional district. That will leave the people of Fulton county free to elect a worthy and able man to represent it in the national legislature.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK

(Special Dispatch to The Atlanta Constitution and The North American)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 19.—Rex Bell isn't telling the world anything about his best girl's difficulties. He's making a picture about it, and the admirers of "it" girls must maintain that the inevitable lawsuits come up.

The price of "it" girls is $30,000 so far for Clara Bow, it would seem. But the lady from whom she "it" away a husband feels that one hundred and thirty thousand would be more like it. So while the battle of finances wages in Dallas, Texas, between La Bow and a lady who feels the red-haired star is a bad investment, the studio calmly states that it is all Miss Bow's business and they have nothing to say. And the boy friend thinks remarkably about it should come from Miss Bow also.

A few remarks are drifting back here, via long-distance. They say that the fact that Clara feels pretty much that path of glory lead but to trouble and so on. Her fellow players seem to feel the same way. They are paying some piper, somewhere, some time.

Just as Clara Bow gets a romance going that is quite to her liking, along come trouble and throws a monkey wrench into the picture. Harry Richman and Clara are one of the widely advertised engagements of a village whose engagements are blazoned from one end of the universe to the other.

Despite the fact that rumor credits Harry Richman's agents with offering him about the studios as an engagement for publicity purposes, his romance with fair Clara looks on some very dramatic angles before finis was written across it.

And now that the picture is a handsome cowboy who played the rival role.

WONDERINGS.

BY FRANK H. JOHNSON.

Mrs. Black is a wealthy woman, with several maids to do her work and wait upon her. Her car being in a garage for repairs she boards a bus and drives to her home about 6 p. m., and a physically exhausted laborer enters the car and sits down by her side.

"I believe," he says, "that you are Mrs. Black. I have heard of you."

"Yes," she replies, "I am Mrs. Black. I am a wealthy woman. I have several maids to do my work and wait upon me. My car is in the garage for repairs. I board a bus and drive home about 6 p. m. and a physically exhausted laborer enters the car and sits down by my side."

What causes so much competition in business and professions? Is it not a fact that most parents encourage their children to select for their life's work something that requires very little physical exertion? Does this have a tendency to overwork business and the professions? And as more and more labor-saving machines are introduced, will business and the professions become still more overworked?

I wonder.

special or general practice; it is up to the doctor to impose a 50 per cent limitation; the state has licensed him as properly educated, trained and qualified to practice any or all branches of medicine and surgery. When this little class of self-proclaimed surgeons assumes the prerogative of validating or invalidating the state's license, the situation becomes intolerable to self-respecting physicians and a menace to public welfare.

FUNERAL RITES TODAY

FOR SLAN PATROLMAN

BY J. B. HOLLIDAY

BY J. B. HOLLIDAY

BY J. B. HOLLIDAY

With an honorary escort of mounted officers and foot patrolmen, his companions for more than a score of years, forming a uniformed cortege, the body of Aaron B. Roberts, 60, veteran policeman, who Wednesday was slain in a cafe shooting affray, will be laid to rest in West View cemetery this morning, following services to be conducted at 10 o'clock in the morning at the home of Harry G. Wood, 1000 N. 10th St.

At Dallas, Ga., about an hour later, the funeral services of Aaron's slayer, Nick D. Camp, cafe proprietor, will be held at the New Hope Baptist church, with interment following in the churchyard. Camp himself was mortally wounded after shooting Robert when John D. Wood, partner in the slain policeman, fired two shots into the cafe proprietor's body.

Captain Grover C. Fain will head the honorary pallbearers. Robert's funeral, with Lieutenants W. P. Reed, C. H. Mitchell and A. M. Hornsby and Patrolmen P. V. West and C. E. Williams assisting.

Surviving Roberts are his widow; one daughter, Mrs. R. L. Groover; two sons, A. Glenn Roberts and Emmett Roberts; two sisters, Mrs. M. W. Roberts and Miss Sara Roberts; and four brothers, Alonzo, John, Charles and Willie Roberts.

Camp is survived by his widow; three daughters, Edna, Doris and Betty; two sons, Watson, Eugene and Johnny B. Camp; three brothers and one sister.

Officer Roberts died on the operating table at Grady hospital late Wednesday afternoon after a desperate effort to save his life by means of a blood transfusion had failed. He also died at the city hospital, some three hours previous to Robert's death.

THE SHOOTING WAS THE RESULT OF domestic altercations between Camp and his wife over the alleged disturbance of a 14-year-old waitress in Camp's cafe, at 288 Marietta street. The girl, Helen Crowder, was taken by her into the Camp home when she appeared to the wife of the slain policeman. Camp's gun blazed without warning after an exchange of words between him and Roberts, who "was laughing and joking" at the time.

Both Mrs. Camp, her 14-year-old daughter, and Officer Wood, who was shot in the shooting, were taken to Grady hospital. The shooting tended to corroborate the three others.

An odd coincidence was being discussed among officers at Grady when Mr. Roberts is the second policeman to meet sudden death within a year as a result of substituting for a three-year-old daughter, a young girl, made signed statements to detectives, each giving her version of the affair. In essential details the statements were identical. The wife of the slain policeman, who was shot in the shooting, was taken to Grady hospital. The shooting tended to corroborate the three others.

German Guard Kills Polish Official

BERLIN, June 19.—(UN)—A German border patrolman shot and killed a Polish customs official today at the boundary near the village of Lohr, in East Prussia, 80 miles southeast of Königsberg.

The incident aroused high concern here, followed closely the Neuhausen clash a month ago which aroused members of the governments of both countries.

The German government immediately dispatched a commission to Prostken.

A thorough inquiry will be made into the shooting, it was declared. The Neuhausen incident resulted in the death of a Polish officer and the wounding of a German frontier official. Germany 10 days ago was the result of a note strongly protesting that affair.

continued threats had been made by attorneys associated with the power company to have him cited for contempt and placed in jail.

LaVare said when the case went before Judge Deever he was confident he would receive a courteous and unprejudiced hearing based on the facts.

After the hearing before the judge at Macon, Ga., the petition said, "LaVare and his associates" "from proceeding in any way as individuals or as officers of either said corporations or as directors or stockholders of said corporations to change the status of said corporations, and from proceeding in any court for the administration of the assets of said corporations."

He added that J. T. Webb, Jr., was appointed under the decree as commissioner for all the assets of the corporations involved and that F. T. ## The More I Risk My Neck, Said Putnam, The More They Must Risk To Catch Me

By Robert Quillen

By Robert Quillen

By Robert Quillen

Do you know why brick masons and locomotive engineers get more money than office men who wear white collars?

Organization explains part of the difference, but there is an underlying cause that makes organization possible and effective.

If the masons and the engineers should quit work, few if any competent men would appear to take their places.

If the white-collar men should quit, a dozen men old and young would stand in line to compete for each job.

One man's job is secure and well-paid because it required a long apprenticeship and few are prepared for it; the other man lives in fear of losing his place because any man of ordinary sense, given a few hours of instruction, could do his work.

The man pushing a wheel-barrow gets 40 cents an hour; the surgeon works 30 minutes and is paid several hundred dollars.

Does that seem unfair?

It is as fair as any arrangement can be in an imperfect world.

The man with the barrow is paid for his immediate service; the surgeon is paid for the work he does now and also for the years he labored to prepare himself for that work.

That truth, properly understood, is the hope and safeguard of the man who must earn his bread.

I once knew a man in overall, a socialist, who boasted that he fared well because he had a monopoly as effective as any capitalist's.

"I monopolize," said he, "the skill and strength of the only man in this neighborhood who can be trusted to prune trees correctly, and therefore I fix my own wage scale."

The man who chooses an easy job must expect to have as competitors all other men who like easy jobs.

These competitors, bidding against him, lower the price of the service he renders, and he must work for little or surrender his job.

The man who chooses a hard job—one that requires years of study and practice, however easy it may seem when the apprenticeship is finished—has the comforting assurance that every day he spends in preparation shakes off a few more competitors.

With each added degree of weariness he can say: "I am just that much savor. No man can overtake me except by enduring what I endure."

TORCH MURDER VICTIM CLAIMED PENNSY YOUTH

Indiana Police See Solution of "Death" of Schroeder.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 19.—(AP)—The Indianapolis Star tonight quotes Indiana officers in Mobile, Ala., investigating the alleged torch murder here May 31, as saying they have uncovered information indicating the victim was Tony Yonell, of Nanticoke, Pa., who was a resident of Mobile until May 24.

Yonell, the Star says, is described as about 20 years old and of slight build, and is believed to have studied at St. Aloysius High school in Pennsylvania. A hitch-hiker picked up near the scene of the burning automobile here May 31, was carrying a rain coat bearing the letters "S. A. H. S." Yonell hitch-hiked from Mobile and arrived in Indiana, the Star says, but no work has been received from him since. He was said to have carried a bone-handled knife and Pittsburgh street car tokens similar to such articles found in the Alabama's automobile. A pair of pliers, also painted with "S. A. H. S." was found in the automobile and Yonell, the Star says, worked in an automobile parking lot at Mobile.

Professor Anzilotti, president of the court, praised Justice Hughes' knowledge, experience and authority, which, the speaker said, invested his opinions with great value.

RUNOVER CONTESTS PRACTICALLY BARRED

Runover races as a result of the democratic primary Wednesday were virtually barred Thursday by those candidates entitled to make such races, when they all stated they are inclined to live up to the "gentlemen's agreement" they entered before the balloting took place with the exception of Thomas W. Jones, runner-up in the twelfth ward councilmanic contest, who had no such agreement.

Mr. Jones, however, was undecided, and it was probable that even he will concede the nomination of H. M. Rantlin, the high man in the contest.

Board Education, Sixth Ward—Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, 316; Joseph P. McGrath, 310.

Key Statement.
Declaring that he intends to take a short vacation, and that he will continue his efforts for clean, honest, efficient and economical government, Mr. Key said:

"I thank the people of Atlanta for their splendid support. Every vote that came to me came out of the heart and confidence of the people of Atlanta. I spent no money. I solicited no votes and was denied even the pleasure of visiting voters before the election.

"I still go in this office absolutely free to do what I think is right. I have made no promises or pledges to anyone and shall not do so until I know all about it.

"I was put in this race by a group of friends and I accepted their acts as a call to service. I feel I have been given a commission by the people of Atlanta to re-establish clean, honest, efficient and economical government. I cannot do this without the help of the people. I shall conduct the office in the open and shall call on them from time to time to aid me in what I believe is in line with the policy they wish me to pursue.

"I feel this a triumph of the right-thinking people of Atlanta and shall dedicate my time and ability such as they are to this service.

"I am recuperating my strength rapidly, shall take a vacation of a few days when I hope I shall return in abundant strength and health."

Congratulates Winner.
Councilman Moore, runner-up in the mayoralty campaign, declared he has delivered his congratulations to the victorious candidate, Mr. Key, and that he will abide by the agreement.

J. C. Aldredge, runner-up in the seventh ward councilmanic contest, called on his friends to support Mr. Marler, the high man, and to work for the best interests of the ward and Atlanta.

Frank R. Fling stated Thursday

I. N. Ragdale extended an official welcome.

Further ceremonies followed when the party, after parading through the downtown section, went to the home on Peachtree street for a buffet luncheon. The official visit of Grand Exalted Ruler Andrews preceded a dance at the club Thursday night.

Mr. Jones declared that he has not made up his mind as to whether he will oppose Mr. Rantlin in a runover for the councilmanic nomination for the twelfth ward, but indicated that his disposition is to concede the election.

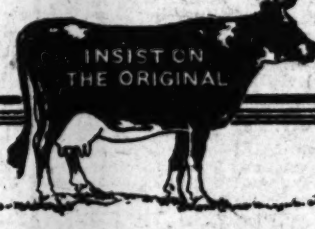

J. P. Wall, chairman of the executive committee, announced that unless the candidates entitled to enter runovers file formal notice within five days, the high vote-getter will be declared the nominee in each instance.

Saunders' Statement.
Councilman Saunders issued the following statement: "I am deeply grateful to the friends who stood by me in this election. I still expect to be vindicated and am ashamed of none of my official acts. If the two leaders in the twelfth ward race hold

Mr. von Herrmann's forecast indicated that the thermometer would show an equal, if not a higher temperature today. Fair weather was expected.

Miss Pyburn Weds John Wood Stoney At Church Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Margaret Pyburn, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude H. Pyburn, to John Wood Stoney was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at the Church of the Epiphany. Rev. Russell K. Smith, rector, performed the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Baskets of madonna lilies banked the chancel rail, interspersed with palms and great quantities of greenery, with tall cathedral candles making an aisle with their soft, mellow glow, lighting the altar.

Miss Kula Hancock played a number of appropriate selections. Floyd Jennings sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me," accompanied by Forrest Traylor on the organ. During the ceremony Miss Hancock played "Roses of Picardy."

To the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin," the four ushers entered in pairs. They were Fred Robinson, Leal Scheff, Henry Sanders and Olney Rankin. They were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Costello, Miss Margaret Castles and Miss Virginia Branch, and the matron of honor, Mrs. Guy Amason, who entered singly. They wore frocks of point d'esprit and net with picture hats of hair braid with matching slippers and long mittens. Miss Costello wore orchid, Miss Branch green, Miss Castles pink and Mrs. Amason peach. Each carried an arm bouquet of garden flowers tied with ribbon to match their frocks.

The maid of honor, Miss Alice June Holloway, of Indianapolis, Ind., a cousin of the bride, entered next. She wore a frock of flowers net offset with picture hat of hair braid and carried rose buds and lilies of the valley. The bride entered with her father. She wore eggshell point d'esprit over ivory satin, made princess style with tight sleeves and long, full skirt falling in a short train. Her veil was of tulle falling to the floor, the cap being held in place with white lilies and she carried an arm bouquet of white lilies. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Ervin Scheff. After the ceremony, the attendants were entertained with a buffet supper at the home of the bride's parents, where they were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Alice G. Holloway, of Indianapolis, a sister of Mrs. Pyburn. The bride and groom left immediately for a motor trip to Florida, the bride traveling in a black and red ensemble with black panama hat. They will be at home after July 1 in Atlanta.

Forty-First Installment.

"You don't seem to have any trouble getting jobs now, Dan. Remember when it used to worry you so, for fear you'd never make good?"

"I haven't made good," he muttered, darkly.

Cassy looked down at the letters in her hand.

"Do you suppose Dulce thought I'd read these?"

"I suppose so."

She has curious ideas—primitive ideas," Cassy observed mildly.

"She'd read 'em fast enough," Dan said.

He glanced at them, flushed darkly. "I don't know what gets into a man, when he goes crazy about a woman," he said awkwardly.

"I don't know what got into us," Cassy amended it, gloomily. "As she stood there, Dan," she said, "it seemed to me the most ridiculous thing—the most preposterous thing, that she should be here at all. That through anything you and I ever did she should belong here, between us, deciding whether or not we should see each other again."

"I know," Dan said.

"Divorce is a funny thing, isn't it?"

"That's what I was thinking." Maybe it isn't this way with every one, but it seems to me—why, just that you and I belong together," Cassy said, feeling her way, speaking as if she only thought I'll go on, up at the ranch, Dulce will be alone at La Lomita, and you'll be in Australia. That's all we can do."

"No use—trying to talk to her over, trying to get free," he asked.

"No," he answered himself, "we can't go back."

"Oh, no, no, no," Cassy paused. "And it would never be the same," she added sadly.

"I suppose not."

"You can see, by her coming all the way down, and by her giving me these letters, Dan, how bitterly she feels. She wouldn't have risked these—she knows I'll burn them—if she hadn't been furious. These are probably the only love letters Dulce ever had; she's not going to let you be happy again, if she can help it."

"No, I see that."

"She says these are the letters you wrote her during that winter when the children were sick, and I was all worn out."

"Yes."

Cassy flung the letters into the dead ashes of the fire, stooped to pick up the last pink ember.

"Cassy, if you could forgive me, Dan began hoarsely, suddenly close beside her, leaning over her, but not touching her. "If you could forgive me for being such a damn fool," he sighed.

"Why, it wasn't all you, Dan," she answered, with her honest blue eyes fixed soberly to his.

"Oh, it was," he muttered. He walked to the window, and Cassy stood by the mantel.

"Well, you're all right. "Your the most wonderful woman in the world," he said.

"Every one adores you. And you have the kids—"

"More than my sister has, collecting prints in Paris," Cassy agreed, in the pause.

"I have nothing," Dan said.

"I want to him, and put her arms along his arms, and gripped his shoulders with her brown fingers.

"You have me, Dan," she said. "I've never stopped loving you—I never will. There's something—something to think about, when you go away."

"Cassy," he whispered, a great hope in his haggard face, "could I ever come back to you?"

"Not now. But—but can I write you, Cassy?"

"Now and then, if you like."

"And will you write me?"

"Somehow."

He put his head down on her shoulder.

"Oh, my God, you give me hope again, you give me hope again! I'll all come right, some day, won't it, Cassy?"

"I don't know—" she faltered, looking away, her lip shaking. Tears brimmed her blue eyes.

"Well, I'm going. I sail tomorrow, and my contract is for a year. It's a rotten hard job, and I'm going to work like a dog. I'll let you know."

He glanced toward the closed kitchen door.

"What about the children, Cassy?"

"I think not, Dan," she said uncertainly, after a moment of hesitation. "They love you so—Margaret cried so bitterly when we left Napa."

"Margaret did?" he asked, a little huskily.

"Tears stood in his own eyes."

"Suppose you speak to them, Dan, without any goodbyes. They're such tender-hearted little things."

"I'll do that then," he agreed. His face, Cassy remembered after—was, was ghastly.

She went to the dining room door. "Mama, send the children in, will you?"

"You give them a wonderful childhood, Cassy," he said humbly.

She closed the dining room door behind her; now the knob turned slowly, as children's fingers might turn it, and it was opened from the other side.

But instead of little Margaret and Tom, it was Dulce who came in, and she closed it again behind her; she stood facing the other two with the livid face and glittering eyes of a mad woman.

"The instant Cassy saw her she knew that they were all lost, and that this was what she had been expecting, been fearing, all through the strange, uneasy hours of this endless foggy day."

She whispered something, and Dulce said in a whispering voice: "You thought you could have it all your own way, didn't you, Mr. Daniel Wallace?"

Cassy heard Dan shout, and saw him spring forward toward Dulce.

"I'm all right, Cassy—it's all right. But for God's sake keep out of the way."

Then the report of the revolver came, and after that there was an endless minute of silence in the room. An acrid smell of gunpowder penetrated the air; the smoke mushroomed slowly against the low ceiling. Dan's letters, under the heated, light wood, fired suddenly and sent up a cheerful spurt of flame. Cassy's eyes, wandering vaguely against them, saw fog—fog—fog, pressing against them.

She wished she could wake up. She was bending backward against a wall, with one hand tight against her heart and her mouth filled with water.

"There," Dulce said, in a dry, quiet, triumphant voice.

"You thought I was afraid—You thought I was just talking. That's how much I was talking—that's how much I was afraid."

Dan had stopped on his way toward her, had sunk into a chair.

"That's the time you got me," he whispered. And turning his eyes to Cassy, he breathed, "She's done it, Cassy."

Cassy somehow had the smoking pistol in her hands. Now she was forcing it upon Dana.

"Give it to me," Dulce said, coolly, wrenching it from Dana's hands. She laughed, turning away. "I'm not going to hurt you, Cassy," she said. "They were alone in the room, she and Dan."

Cassy was on her knees, the beloved head was limp against her cheek.

"I think it is only—Grated the under-arm—I don't know," he said.

YOUNG STRIBLING AND VON PORAT BATTLE TONIGHT

Georgian Favored Over Norwegian Heavyweight at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Stadium and state boxing commission officials were accused of doing a Sherlock Holmes shadowing act today as the puzzling 10-round heavyweight match between Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian boxer, and Young Stribling, of Macon, Ga., tomorrow night neared a showdown.

Worried that Stribling, who claims his left hand was sprained and in no condition for the fight, may decide to "run out" one or more of the interested officials appeared to check his every movement, causing fans and sport writers to think they were shadowing him. Sidney Stroz, president of the stadium which is promoting the match, and Commissioner Fred Gardner spent their fourth afternoon watching Von Porat and Von Porat work out.

Stribling and his father-manager laughed at reports they planned to "run out" on the fight, however. They appeared before the commission's physician today for another examination of the hand and seemed satisfied when they were advised again that nothing was wrong with the fighting implement.

"My son will be there and he'll give Von Porat a licking he'll remember," said Pa Stribling.

Both fighters tapered off with a light drill today. Stribling went through six rounds of work but did very little bag punching, while Von Porat finished his long, hard training grind with a light four-round workout.

Odds tonight still favored Stribling, 6 to 5, because of his superior boxing ability. He outpointed the Norwegian once easily, escaping his hard right smashes with ease. Von Porat will outweight his rival, however. Today he weighed 205, while Stribling scaled 191.

Chicago fans, regarding the match as a "heavyweight natural" and an elimination fight to determine Max Schmeling's next rival in a heavyweight championship battle, were gobbling the tickets tonight. Twenty-one thousand are expected to watch the match if it is held on schedule this time after three postponements and the gate receipts are expected to reach $55,000, of which Von Porat is to receive 30 per cent and Stribling 25 per cent of the gross.

Stribling Bout On National Hookup.

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—The Chicago stadium broke its rule against radio broadcasting of fights tonight, permitting the National Broadcasting Company to put the Young Stribling-Otto Von Porat match, scheduled for tomorrow night, on the air.

The round by round description will be offered by the NBC, over the WCFM network, covering all the east, the west as far as Omaha and Kansas City, and the south as far as Cincinnati. The event will start at about 10 p. m., Chicago daylight saving time.

Announcer Gene Rouse will give the radio account.

Since its construction in 1928, the stadium has refused radio broadcasting privileges, claiming the radio cut down attendance.

Texas League Split; New Half June 25

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, June 19.—(AP)—The Texas league season has been split, with the second half to start June 25, it was announced tonight by J. Alvin Gardner, league president. The vote, President Gardner said, was 7 to 1 for the split.

It was learned that Wichita Falls was the lone member to vote against the division. The Spudders today were eight games in front, with five days to go.

The Texas league has split its season in ten out of the last 12 years. The first half winner never has failed to capture the championship.

Duckwall Entered In Pittsburgh Play

GAINESVILLE, Fla., June 19.—(AP)—Athletic Director Edgar Jones, of the University of Florida, announced tonight that the faculty committee on athletics had granted permission for Bill Duckwall, star golfer, to represent the university at the national intercollegiate golf tournament to be held at Oakland, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Duckwall, state collegiate golf champion, and runner-up for the Southern conference tournament last May, is immediate past president of the student body.

Louisville Rallies To Win 17th Straight

LOUISVILLE, Ga., June 19.—(AP)—Louisville won its seventeenth consecutive victory of the season this afternoon when a seventh-inning rally defeated Sylva, 11 to 7. Louisville defeated Sylva, 8 to 1 Wednesday afternoon at Sylva.

Sylva's hitting was a big feature of the game. He secured a home run with the bases filled in the seventh inning.

National "Y" Games Carded for Boston

The national Y. M. C. A. track and field championship will be held at Massachusetts Institute of Technology field, Boston, June 23.

By Ed Banforth

All the other sports issues for a day have been silenced by the dramatic spectacle of a pudgy Atlanta boy standing on a green mound in southeastern England.

Bobby Jones leads the race for the British open championship by one stroke at the half-way mark. He is peering away through the morning haze at the shimmering prospect of winning the crown for the third time and bringing the storied vase back to East Lake.

Behind him are the most worthy of the world's golfers, refined to the pure metal by the searing fire of two qualifying rounds and two rounds of competition.

Bobby Jones regained his magic touch when competition began day before yesterday. With no favorable breaks in links luck he scored a 70 and a 72 on a course whose par is expressed as 73. He faces two 18-hole rounds today; the results will be all in by mid-afternoon due to difference in time.

A few men have caught Bobby Jones in the final 36 holes of open tournaments and passed him. One may do it today. But the chances are that he will speed on and let them all gaze on his broad back as it moves rhythmically through that marvelous stroke of his.

And all Atlanta and a goodly portion of these tariff-ridden states will be clutching for breath until the last score has been cabled across the Atlantic.

There is no time to gaze at any other sports event.

GUESS FINISH AS 75-73.

Those who like to speculate in advance on Bobby's performances had a great time yesterday guessing what scores he would make in the final 36 holes.

To the 70 and 72, an average was "75-73" which would make his final score 290, conceivably enough to win.

His friends back home seem to expect him to sag a bit on the third round and finish with a burst of speed. Often he has done just that.

Yet there is no plausible reason why he should not keep on stepping close to par.

Remember the disappointment of not having won that British amateur is removed now and no doubt the young man feels plumb relaxed.

Young Stribling's injury, a sprained hand, could not have come at a more inopportune time. Ordinarily he would have been granted a postponement to allow the hand to heal. Fans should not be forced to watch a boxer perform who is not at his best.

Yet there are times when the well-meant zeal of the press loses its sense of proportion and "sees things" in the dark.

The press does not have a great deal of confidence in the boxing business, which latterly has become a "racket" as Chicago understands the word.

So Young Stribling's request for a postponement was the signal for newspapers to burn red fire and emit screams of protest to protect dear old Gus Fan. Their experience with the boxing racket does not permit them to take any statement or claim from a boxer or his manager as sincere.

It is the fault of those connected with the subterranean workings of the fight game that they have destroyed public confidence.

Stribling will have to go through with the scrap regardless. And he will have to do exactly what he told the press he would do: Knock Von Porat out or get knocked out trying. And I imagine Young Stribling will relish that assignment. He can be a very rough young man when he wants to be.

BUSINESS IS PICKING UP.

Since this colyum got fresh the other day and produced some apparent errors that appeared in the daily prints, it has been swamped with other examples of the little slips that understandably get by in the daily bustle of issuing a newspaper.

One of them was from the society pages of the dear old Constitution itself. It read:

"The bride is the grandmother of the late, etc., etc." Investigation revealed that the copy was correct but the linotype operator had a mental lapse.

But the hearty laugh came when one of the two-for-a-nickel afternoon newspapers picked up the same story, reprinted it word for word and never noticed the error.

Aren't we all?

CRACKERS WIN OVER MEMPHIS IN THIRD GAME

"Red" Oldham Hurls Victory, Though Wild at Times.

By Ralph McGill.

Getting something that approached real pitching, the Atlanta Crackers showed enthusiastic appreciation by beating the Memphis Chickasaws, 5 to 4, Thursday afternoon at Spiller field to end a losing streak of three-day duration.

Red Oldham was in the box for the Crackers. He was pitching spotty baseball. He walked ten men, struck out five and allowed seven hits. Which is just fair pitching. But it was enough to bring a victory as the Crackers hit two Memphis pitchers for 11 safeties and five runs.

One may deduct from the Thursday exhibition just how terrible the pitching has been on previous days. Red Oldham was not right by any means, but he did tighten up in the pinches. And the Crackers, delighted to be behind a pitcher who had even a fair amount of stuff, dashed around in fine style.

They turned in two double plays and made no errors at all. Bob Lemotte made two fine stops at third and Appling could have covered no more territory had he been on horseback.

JIMMY AT FIRST.

Jimmy Johnston, who is a very valuable man to have around, came in from the outfield in the sixth to take over first base when Roy Grimes was hurt. Grimes was kneed, accidentally, by Daughtry, Memphis outfielder, in a play at first, and had to retire. Johnston made two nice plays and handled the position in faultless style.

Since the season started Jimmy Johnston has played at third, short, first and in the outfield. One of these days they may have him pitch and catch in a game and get it over with. He is a capable performer.

Red Oldham pitched himself right into trouble in the ninth and gave the meager crowd something approaching apoplexy. His lead was just two runs. Which isn't much when a club like the Chickasaws is at bat.

Oldham gave his ninth base on balls to Berger to open the ninth. Which may have been appropriate but it was dangerous.

CROWD CHEERED.

He then struck out Shepherd, pinch-hitter for May, and went on strike out Flashkamper, the lead-off man. That burst of brilliance cheered the crowd no little and they yelled appreciation.

Oldham, working the corners, couldn't find them and walked Daughtry.

Tex Jones, always dangerous, hit to center field as Berger and sent Daughtry to third.

Brazill slapped a hard line drive to center. There was a deadly silence in the field as Sam Langford charged in and took it for the final out. And then what a yell! The losing streak was broken.

Langford, angered by a raucous-voiced fan in Wednesday's game, continued to hit. He was so angry Wednesday that he closed out with a double and a triple. Thursday afternoon he hadn't cooled off, so he helped knock out Griffin with a single and a double and then knocked May for a double on his first appearance against that worthy.

Cy Rosenthal turned up with two doubles and a single and Jimmy Johnston included a double and a single in his efforts. He also knocked in two of the five runs.

The game was all snarled up for a while. The Chickas made two in the first, the Crackers one in the fifth. The Crackers promptly tied them. A triple, preceded by a base on balls, gave the Chickas their third tally in the third. The Crackers then right back with their third marker.

The score was tied until the fifth when Fred Polvort knocked in two bases runs which had been walked by May. And thereafter Red Oldham held them. He walked closely with danger now and then but he came through.

The two teams play again this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Joe Kiefer is the probable pitcher for the Crackers.

In Training for the Grand Terrapin Derby

At the top three legionaires are shown exhibiting some of the entries. Left to right, C. R. Hammond, C. L. The terrapin derby, the first one to be staged east of the Mississippi, is attracting much attention. Ness, who came to Gainesville from Pecos, Texas, gave the Legion post the idea. JOHNNY RISKO WINS DECISION Baker Boy Scores Second Victory Over Paulino.

DETROIT, June 19.—(AP)—Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, outpointed Paulino Uscudun, heavyweight from the Basque country of Spain, in a 10-round bout here tonight. Risko weighed 190 3-4; Paulino, 195. It was Risko's second victory over Paulino but unlike the first meeting three years ago there was no doubt of the accuracy of Referee Al Day's verdict.

Only in the sixth round did the Spanish woodchopper show anything that disturbed the Cleveland baker boy in the lead. In this session, Paulino fought viciously, landing a stinging right and left to Risko's heart and jolting the Clevelander with a heavy blow to the kidneys. In the fifth round, hammering the Basque with every punch in his extensive repertoire, Risko landed three or four blows to every one the Basque could send through and consistently outsped and outsmarted his rival.

Despite the battering he took, Paulino was in danger of a knockout only in the fifth round when a series of hard rights and lefts to the jaw had him staggering.

At the end of the fight Paulino's left eye was nearly closed from Risko's sharp lefts and the right also has suffered considerable damage.

A crowd of 11,000 saw the battle.

Legion's Terrapin Derby Draws 480 Speedsters Gainesville Post Plans Unique Entertainment for State Convention—Entries Pouring In.

By Ralph McGill.

"You mean you never heard of a terrapin derby?" It was C. L. Ness speaking; C. L. Ness, late of Pecos, Texas, and now of Gainesville, Ga.

He is the man who has made Gainesville "Terrapin Conclous." He is the man who caused 480 terrapins to be crawling about in Ed Dunlap's dog kennel. He is the man who caused the American Legion post of Gainesville, which is planning the finest state convention in all Legion history, to decide on one afternoon when the grand "Terrapin Derby" will be run.

"Well, well, never heard of a terrapin derby?" He said that some weeks ago. C. R. Hammond, jeweler and legionaire, put an ad in the paper saying that he would pay 25 cents each for each and every upland terrapin. The Legion had told Ness they couldn't get terrapins.

The next day Hammond called Ed Dunlap. When one is troubled in Gainesville one calls Ed Dunlap.

"Ed," he said plaintively, "I got eight terrapins down here and you know a jewelry store is no place for terrapins."

"Bring 'em out to my house and I'll keep them," said Ed Dunlap.

The next day there were 16 terrapins, the next day 35 and today there were 480 terrapins crawling about in Ed Dunlap's dog kennel. And more coming each day.

"I never thought I'd have more than 15 or 20," said Dunlap, "but now we've got them we are going to have the biggest terrapin derby that has ever been held."

ITS THIS WAY.

The man from Pecos spoke up and said:

"You see, it's this way. A long time ago out in Texas there weren't many women in the towns to take to dances or bridge parties so the boys just naturally turned to betting."

"It got so," continued the man from Pecos, "that they were so good at lying and cheating that no one would trust the other. Cards, dice, racing and other forms of sport were all outlawed because there was always some wise hombre smart enough to cheat the others."

"They were all sitting around just languishing one day when up rode an old fellow on a horse. He had a pair of saddle bags and they looked all bulged out."

"Boys," he said, as he pulled up, "I got something here we can all bet on. And he pulled out a half-dozen terrapins out of his saddle bags."

HAS TERRAPINS.

"He put them terrapins out on the ground and he drew him a circle. Then he drew him a large circle. The terrapins were in the small one. 'Now,' he said, 'the first terrapin

Ray Francis Signed To Hurl for Crackers

Cracker officials announced Thursday night that Ray Francis, left-handed pitcher, recently made a free agent by the Braves, would report to the club Friday morning.

Francis, who was with the Crackers in 1927 and 1928, won 15 games for Johnny Dahbbs in 1929 and lost seven. "He thinks he can go for us," said Dahbbs. "The league is a set-up for left-handed pitchers who can really pitch. I think Ray can win for us again."

Cracker officials were not ready to announce who would be cut loose to make room for Francis.

Roy Grimes is expected to be out for a few days and it is possible that another first baseman will be signed to take his place. Grimes was injured in a collision at first, Daughtry, Memphis outfielder, falling on him with his knees.

HOYLEAKE, June 19.—Bobby Jones assumed the lead in the tournament for the British open golf championship here today when he scored a par 72, making his total 142 for the two days of play. At the end of the day on the last green, Fred Robson, of England, by a quarter of an inch just missed tying Bobby. Robson's score for the day was also a par 72, one more stroke than he needed yesterday.

The end of the second day's play shows six Americans, four Britons, and one Frenchman make up the first eleven.

It was another lovely day for the tournament and the scores were expected. But things went rather badly with the leaders, and the Americans in particular did not do as well as they did on the first day.

Had Bobby Jones been at his most devastating best when he started, he might have opened up such a lead between himself and the next man as to leave the final issue in small doubt. Instead of this, however, he began with his devastating worst. He does not like the first four holes and he played them here today as if he does not. His five at the first was due to too much caution and he was lucky in jumping a bunker at the second to get his four.

At the third, Bobby nearly hooked out of bounds, the ball jumping into the rough. At his next effort, a rather long forcing shot, as I thought, he jumped another bunker and went into more rough. The result was a six and three whole strokes were wasted.

Then Bobby set his teeth and started. From that point until the end of the 15th hole, he did every hole in exactly par score. There were two misadventures at the two 16th holes, but in each case he pitched back beautifully, holed nice putts and got three.

At the 16th, which is 580 yards long, Jones was not quite back two and took a five. Two perfectly played fours finished a really superb round and Bobby was three shots ahead of Horton Smith, who finished before him.

EXTRAORDINARY.

Jones is a most extraordinary player. You leave off watching him when he is two or three over four. You come back an hour or so later and he is two or three under four and nobody seems to know exactly how he has done it.

Mac Smith and Jim Barnes were the first two Americans out. Each finished with a 77, so that Mac Smith still holds a lead of a number of notable putts. It cannot be said that either played well. Smith had a couple of 6s on the way out, which swelled his outgoing score to 40. Barnes let a number of notable putts slip and had some serious trouble at the short 13th hole, which cost him a five.

ARCHIE A BIT OFF.

True, complete the admission that while Archie played a brave round he did not play a good one. A number of his second shots were exceedingly sketchy. He had luck with him in holing his pitches and his own indomitable confidence helped him through. Still, handsome as is handsome does—a 73 and a 73—but an sure "Compton" was profoundly grateful when the round was safely over.

Man Drops Dead At Hoylelake Match

HOYLEAKE, England, June 19. (AP)—A spectator, Glen Tait, a 70-year resident of Sheffield, dropped dead of heart trouble during play in the second round of the British open golf championship today. Tait, who was waiting in the hot sun at the eighteenth green for the match to start, suddenly fell to the ground. Death was attributed to heart trouble caused by the intense heat.

Prospect of Gallant Fox-Reveille Boy Race Stirs Turf Fans

PENNYVILLE PRODUCT WINS MANY FRIENDS

"Long Shot" Winner and "The Fox" Both Kentucky Bred.

LATONIA, Ky., June 19.—(AP)—If Gallant Fox, winner of the Preakness, Kentucky Derby and Belmont stakes, is entered in the Latonia Derby, to be run here June 28, loyal Kentucky fans will have a difficult time deciding to which horse to throw their support in the $25,000 added stake.

The reason is that Reveille Boy, winner of the American Derby at Washington park, a Kentucky-bred horse, and native of the Blue Grass state prefer to see their own thoroughbred triumph in a Kentucky classic. Gallant Fox, by virtue of his victory in the Kentucky Derby, was backed by "Old Kentucky" in his subsequent victory in the Belmont. Local pride in the Derby winner and in a Kentucky colt are likely to conflict.

Reveille Boy, whose owner, J. A. Best, has announced he will run in the Latonia Derby, was bred in western Kentucky, Christian county, which produced Flying Ebony, winner of the Kentucky Derby in 1923. Few thoroughbreders are raised in the "Penny" area, as western Kentucky is familiarly known, as compared to the "Blue Grass" proper, central Kentucky where breeding establishments are located.

NOT SURE.
William Woodward, New York, has not announced the future engagements for Gallant Fox. It has become known, however, that Woodward, last year's 2-year-old champion and winner of the Withers, will not race here, since his owner, Harry Payne Whitney, has announced that he will be a starter in the Dwyer stake at Aqueduct on the same day as the Latonia Derby.

This precludes the possibility that Kentucky will see a contest between Gallant Fox and Whichever, started in the Belmont when Gallant Fox defeated his chief rival, the winner of the Arlington park officials have said, however, that both colts will compete in the American classic to be run at the Illinois track July 12, and it is likely that Reveille Boy will also be entered in the $79,000 stake.

EXTRA MONEY.
If Gallant Fox is not entered in the Latonia Derby, the $5,000 extra offered to the owner of the winner of both the Kentucky and Latonia Derbies will go by default, and another year at least will go by with no horse having captured the extra money. No Kentucky Derby winner has ever triumphed in the Latonia feature since the $5,000 extra was offered, though seven horses had won both races previously.

Should Gallant Fox run in the big stake here he would probably be the favorite despite local pride in Reveille Boy, because of the distance. The Latonia Derby is a mile and a half, the same distance as the Belmont stake in which he triumphed over Whichever. The American Derby, first major stake won by Reveille Boy, was only a mile and a quarter. His ability at a longer distance is yet to be tested. Gallant Knight, B. B. Jones' crack colt, which is eligible for the Latonia Derby, has also yet to run the longer route. He was second in the Kentucky Derby and the American Derby, both mile and a quarter races.

Pullman Team Plays Saturday

The Pullman Hurricane, boasting 10 wins in as many starts and fresh from a 10-inning 9-7 defeat of the Atlanta Grey Cows last Saturday, will meet the Atlanta Greyhound this Saturday at 3 p. m. on the Morehouse athletic field.

The strength of the Greyhound aggregation is not known to Manager Hunter, of the Pullmans, hence he plans to start Herman Jennings, one of his best pitchers, and to use Kennon Thompson as the former's battery-mate. Downes, Harold, Wadley and Idlett will compose the infield quartet, while Moore, Moss, Daniels or Alexander, will patrol the outer gardens. W. P. Jones will perform the umpiring duties.

Yale is picked to row a length or so away from Harvard today, but naming the Poughkeepsie winner is another matter. You will probably find the answer next week among Navy, Washington and Columbia and on rowing form these three crews won't be far apart.

After the trimming the east took in football and again in the intercollegiate track and field games from western talent, there is a deep yearning to hang at least one knob on the invaders from the far west—on the water if it can be upon land.

Washington and California are the two Pacific coast challengers, Navy and Columbia look to be the strongest eastern defenses. It will be something to watch. In the meanwhile Yale and Harvard fight out one of the most traditional of all the traditional college contests in a race that an extremely good Yale crew figures to win.

FOUL LEGISLATION.
In the midst of the Sharkey-Schmeling foul chatter Johnson and Latzo hand out another dish of the same just to prove that the boys are going to keep on fouling as long as they feel in the mood. A day or two ago a member of the New York legislature advanced the idea that in addition to foul checks there should be a 10 or 20-minute rest period to give the fouled fighter a chance to recover and keep on fighting the same night. In case this rest wasn't sufficient then the foul checks could be used a week or more later. There are three arrangements that would cover the situation:

1. Have all fight tickets issued with foul checks.
2. Allow the 10 or 20-minute rest period on the same night, with the postponement allowed in case the fouled party can't recover in time.
3. Deduct from the fouler's purse enough to pay all additional expenses incurred for the return match where the foul checks can be used.

In the first place, this deal would practically stop all fouling. In the second place, it would force a contest instead of a farce. So far as the public is concerned a foul fight is no contest. It isn't worth a dime. It is up to the legislatures of various states to see that some sort of legislation is passed that will either stop fouling—or else stop the fight game.

THE TWO RACES.
Athletics, Yankees and Senators are now on home grounds within range of the friendly odor of home cooking. The Cleveland Indians, the other American league contender, are on the road.

Giants and Dodgers, battling abroad, it will be interesting to see just how this shift works out in the next two weeks. The Yankees have come with a rush in the last two weeks and loud noises from the bats of Ruth and Gehrig have sounded a warning to Mack's champions. Both clubs playing at home should improve their percentage figures and become the dominant factors of the younger league.

The Cubs at home expect to go after Brooklyn's lead and take a new jump on the Giants. Joe McCarthy's pennant winners have done extremely well with a crippled cast playing on the road. But the cast wasn't as crippled as it looked to be and if Blair at second, and English at third keep traveling at the same pace the Cubs will be hard to block away from the top. They are due for better pitching and when this comes the flag winners of 1929 will be hard to hold.

OFF AGIN—ON AGIN.
Messrs. Jones, H. Smith, M. Smith, Diegel, Von Elm, Barnes, Moe, etc., wind up at Hoylake this afternoon, pack their stuff, dash for a boat and start back for New York. Arriving at said municipality on the western side of the Atlantic they get a cup of coffee, buy a paper and then look up train schedules for Minneapolis. Having completed one championship they start for another some 4,500 or 5,000 miles away from the lights. Joe McCarthy's pennant winners have done extremely well with a crippled cast playing on the road. But the cast wasn't as crippled as it looked to be and if Blair at second, and English at third keep traveling at the same pace the Cubs will be hard to block away from the top. They are due for better pitching and when this comes the flag winners of 1929 will be hard to hold.

BUNKER DREAD.
The duffer isn't the only one who looks with dread into the depths of a bunker. At Winged Foot last summer Bobby Jones was within 25 feet of the cup in two at the eighth hole, but he needed seven strokes to hole out. At Hoylake, even 45 at the time, George Von Elm was within 25 feet of the cup in two and he needed nine strokes to round out the hole.

Here are two of the greatest amateurs who in open championships used up 12 strokes from bunkers guarding the green before they reached the bottom of the cups on two holes. Extra high tension is one reason, and that is often reason enough.

Mac Smith's first round of 70 at Hoylake brought a thrill to the old timers who recalled the fact that the Lakeview pro had tied for the United States open just 20 years ago. Tying the course record 20 years later in an open championship still shows what a sound swing means and how far it will carry until the strain and the weariness of later rounds begin to take their toll.

LONDOS SHOWS JIU-JITSU HOLD TO WIN MATCH

Beats Frank Judson With Hold Developed in Recent Years.

Jim London, world's champion wrestler, defeated Frank Judson in 38 minutes Thursday night at Spiller field, the end finding Judson with the London's torn from the heel of his left foot.

London was turning on the heat from the first bell and he applied a Japanese jiu jitsu hold that had those at the ring-side who could see averting their eyes. Judson's leg appeared to be bending and his face was twisted with pain. There was no doubt then as to the outcome of the match. Judson was thrown with a series of flying mares but that too held him.

He was examined by Dr. W. A. Arnold, the physician for the boxing commission, who said that the Achilles tendon was torn loose from the heel. Plans were made to make an X-ray of the hurt foot. Judson was suffering severe pain and the ankle was swelling a few minutes after the match.

"It is not a step-over toe hold," said London when asked about the hold. "I think I am the only man using it. It applies a severe strain on the entire leg up to the spine. It must be obtained just so or the pressure will not be applied directly. It would be possible to snap a man's leg but it is used only to weaken the leg."

"I regret very much that Judson was hurt and that the match could not go on. He was proving as troublesome as I expected. He is a good man. He hurt himself in his frantic efforts to get away."

London looked good as a champion. He was ahead of Judson all the way although the ex-Harvard coach did put up a good match. London worked harder and with more intensity than ever before on any appearance here. He is a real champion.

In the semi-windup George Tragos defeated Nazzereno Fozzi, Italian, after 46 minutes of wrestling. It was a rough match.

The preliminary match found George Harbin winner over Mallory Mann.

It was announced that Weber would promote another match next Thursday night.

BIG TERRAPIN DERBY IS SET

that crawls out of the big circle wins all the money.

"There ain't no chance of it being crooked," he said, because these things ain't got sense enough to be crooked.

"Well, it sounded like a good proposition and the boys all put their money down and the first terrapin derby was held."

To hear Ness talk is to believe. All Gainesville is talking about the big terrapin derby that is to be held July 4 at the baseball park.

Boys are out hunting terrapins. The legion is paying 25 cents per terrapin. One of the preachers brought in a terrapin to Ed Dunlap the other day and presented it. The girls and the boys are all eager to be there and dozens call by to see the terrapins at Ed Dunlap's kennel.

"It has to be a shut-fate terrapin," said the man from Pecos. "It can't be any lowland terrapin."

How to Tell.
"How can you tell 'em? Well, sir, a shut-fate terrapin crawls with his legs in front like a dog scratching. A lowland or open-faced terrapin, crawls with his legs out at the side. And his back isn't covered when he pulls in his head."

There are some ladies in Gainesville who have terrapins they are attempting to train. A lot of the boys there are trying that because the terrapin that wins the legion terrapin derby will pay a rich price of several hundred dollars.

"It won't do any good to try and train a terrapin," says the man from Pecos. "The sisters out in Texas used to try that and they were about as fast as a dead Eskimo in the Klondike."

At any rate the terrapins continue to pile up in Ed Dunlap's dog kennel. And Gainesville can have its wait for the finest legion convention the state has ever had.

There will be dances, baseball games, air races and other amusements but the thing that has the boys and girls by the ears, so to speak, is the first terrapin derby that has ever been scheduled east of the Mississippi.

BEARS LOSE ANOTHER.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 19.—(AP)—Chattanooga and Mobile continued their series on the great national pastime this afternoon, the Lookouts winning 11 to 7.

After putting up a 14-run lead in the second and third, the Lookouts grew careless and looked even more miserable in their helplessness.

Bears, who had allowed a pair of scratch hits, was pulled after the fourth to give some of the other Lookout pitchers a workout. The victory gave Bears eight wins and two losses since joining the Lookouts after the season was underway.

PROMOTERS' WAR SEEMS LIKELY

Chicago Stadium Plans Fight on Reported Invasion by "Garden."

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Chicago fight promoters, notably the stadium management, intend to build a high fence around their local show field this afternoon and hereafter to repel the rumored invasion by Madison Square Garden.

Since the Sharkey-Schmeling match, reports that the Garden officials would having their next big match here have been causing Chicago promoters considerable uneasiness and stirring up opposition against a near-repetition of the Dempsey-Junny spectacle at Soldier's field three years ago.

"I see by the papers that Madison Square Garden is talking about coming into Chicago with a big fight, maybe Schmeling and Sharkey or Schmeling and Dempsey," Sidney Strotz, president of the Chicago stadium, said. "Well, the stadium will not let it be idly and let outsiders horn in."

Other promoters here voiced the same sentiment, some even threatening a promotional war if such an invasion takes place.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UN)—The New York Yankees have recalled pitcher William Henderson from the Jersey City International league club and have released pitcher Louis McEvoy to the Oakland Pacific Coast league club on option.

Oakland is sending Pitcher Ivy Andrews, secured on option from the Yankees, to Birmingham, of the Southern league in a deal for Outfielder Meryl Hoag from the Sacramento Valley club.

Secretary Ed Barrow, of the Yankees, also announced the purchase of Outfielder Meryl Hoag from the Sacramento Valley club for cash and unnamed players. Hoag will finish the season with Sacramento.

Ben Paschal Sets Association Record
CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Benny Paschal, who seldom got a chance to bat when he was with the New York Yankees, has hung up a new "perfect day at bat" mark for American association hitters to shoot at.

Yesterday, while leading St. Paul to a double win over Columbus, Benny hit safely in eight chances, collecting one home run, one triple, a double and five singles, scoring six runs himself and driving in five. It was the best day's performance in American association records.

Bruce Haas, St. Paul, hit safely six out of six in 1925, while Jimmy Zinn, of Kansas City, duplicated the feat in 1926 for the former perfect day record.

'Old Pete' To Hurl For Dallas Club

DALLAS, Tex., June 19.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, star right-hander of the National league for two decades, has been signed by the Dallas club of the Texas league. It was announced tonight by Bob Tarleton, vice president of the local club.

Tarleton said "Old Pete" would receive the highest salary ever paid a player in the Texas league, something over $1,500 per month for the rest of the season. Alexander, released unconditionally by the Philadelphia Nationals recently, is to report next Sunday or Monday.

Sexton Will Probe Alexandria Case
ALEXANDRIA, La., June 19.—(AP)—Alexandria's protest against being voted out of the Cotton States league will be investigated by baseball's highest authorities.

Mayor V. V. Larkin today announced receipt of a telegram from Mike H. Sexton, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, wired from Rock Island, Ill., saying:

"Will make inquiry into situation. Please notify James C. Bolton." Mr. Bolton, as president of chamber of commerce, in addition to the mayor and three directors, C. R. Rockwell, Morgan Walker and P. A. Gilham, had wired Mr. Sexton and Judge Kennesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, requesting an investigation of the action of the club owners and the league in dropping this city from organized baseball.

BANOVIC WINS DECISION.
BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 19.—(AP)—Joe Banovic, local light heavyweight, defeated Charley Belanger, Canadian light-heavy champ, in a fast 10-round fight here tonight. Banovic weighed 173 and Belanger, 175.

PITCHERS HOLD BIG SIX STARS; AVERAGES DROP
Herman Re-enters Circle and Takes Second Place With Two Hits.

Hits were rather scarce in the Big Six yesterday although only two members were out of action. Chuck Klein, the leader, and Paul Waner were rained out. The three American league members got one hit apiece. Babe Ruth showing the way with his 22nd home run of the year and scoring the only run.

The result was that Cochrane dropped to the 385 mark, Hodapp to 394 and Ruth to 376.

Babe Herman, of Brooklyn, who hit two out of four for a .397 average, became the day's new member, replacing Riggs Stephenson in second place.

Stephenson hit one out of five and dropped off considerably.

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR No. 83

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Copyright, 1936, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc. All rights reserved.

At last Jane summoned courage to undertake the ordeal of continuing her journey through the jungle. Descending from the tree, she set out in a southerly direction, hoping for some change upon a roving band of the Wasiri hunters. The day was half spent when there broke unexpectedly upon her startled ears the sound of a rifle shot not far ahead of her. As she paused to listen, this first shot was followed by another and another and another. What could it mean? She dared not advance nearer to see.

After listening for several minutes, she became convinced that no more than two or three rifles were engaged in the fight. As the shots ceased, she heard two men calling to each other in loud tones. Then there was a long silence which was finally broken by the stealthy padding of footfalls on the trail ahead of her. Then a man appeared in view, looking toward her, a rifle ready in his hands, his eyes directed in careful watchfulness along the way that he came. And almost instantly Jane Clayton realized the man.

It was "M. Jules Freccout," who so recently had been a guest in her home. She was on the point of calling to him in glad relief when she saw him leap aside and hide beside the trail. Scarcely had he done so than the figure of a white-robed Arab crept silently along the trail in pursuit. From her hiding place, Jane Clayton could see both men plainly. She recognized Achmet Zes as the leader of the band of ruffians who had raided her home and made her a prisoner. And she saw "Freccout," the supposed friend and ally, raise his gun.

He took careful aim at the Arab. Her heart stood still and every power of her soul was directed upon a prayer for the accuracy of his aim. Achmet Zes paused in the middle of the trail. His tall figure presented a perfect target to the perfidious assassin. There was a sharp report, a puff of smoke and Achmet Zes pitched forward, face down, upon the ground. As Freccout stepped out from the bush, he was startled by a glad cry from above him and was astounded as a woman dropped from a tree and ran toward him.
